

ADVISORY PANEL

Be the Dinosaur[™] has been developed with the ongoing collaboration of a distinguished advisory panel from the fields of paleontology, academia, and interactive entertainment/software design.

Paleontology Advisors:

- James O. Farlow, Ph.D., Professor of Geology, Indiana Purdue University
- Thomas Holtz, Ph.D., Chair, Department of Geology, University of Maryland
- John Hutchinson, Ph.D., Lecturer in Evolutionary Biomechanics, Structure and Motion Lab, Royal Veterinary College, U.K.
- Dale A. Russell, Ph.D., Senior Curator of Paleontology, NC Museum of Natural History
- Manabu Sakamoto, paleontologist, Department of Earth Sciences, University of Bristol, U.K.

Interactivity Advisors:

- Eugene P. Jarvis, software pioneer and world famous designer of interactive entertainment. Recipient of the International Game Developer's Assoc. Lifetime Achievement Award.
- Andrew Chaikin, science journalist, author, commentator for NPR, advisor to NASA on Space Policy and Public Communications. Former contributing editor of Popular Science. Former researcher at the Smithsonian Center for Earth and Planetary Studies.
- Kathleen Gareiss, Senior Partner, Executive Director of Project Management & Interactive Operations, OgilvyInteractive

Visitor Studies/Museum Advisors:

- Stephen Bitgood, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology, Jacksonville State University
- Rob Ross, Ph.D., Education Director, Paleontological Research Institute and the Museum of the Earth
- Bridgett Chandley, Education Director, Hands On Regional Science Center, Johnson City, Tennessee
- John Kelton, Exhibit Designer and Fabricator, KeltonDesign, Inc., Huntsville, Alabama
- Ronald Ross, Director of Alumni Affairs, Drew University. Board of Directors, Liberty Science Center (for Gov. Thomas H. Kean)
- L. Scott Miller, Executive Director of the Consortium on Higher Academic Performance, Graduate School of Education, U.C. Berkeley